DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miyakawa et al [2003/0157419] in view of Sugiura et al [2003/0190543], Kurose et al [6022661] and Arai et al [20030165761]. Miyakawa et al teaches the use of an external additive as does the secondary references in a toner composition to control the physical properties of the toner composition. The number of additives to control the physical properties and their size range are taught in [0015], [0109] and [0124]. Alumina or aluminum oxide component function as positively chargeable site so as to produce reverse transfer toner particles and control higher charge capacity and constant charging over time. The range of size is from 7-12nm and 40-50nm with titanium oxide particles. Miyakawa et al fails to teach the acid value of the binder or how to control the charging characteristic of the developer. Kurose teaches 3 sizes of silica as an additive with a binder having the acid value note Col. 3 lines 35-50 as applicants' claim 13. Various additives as known fluidity adjusting agents can be added in combination note Col. 9 lines 1-30. Arai et al has as external additives silica, titanium dioxide and other additives to finely adjust the quantity of electrostatic charge of the toner note [0081]-[0084]. Sugiura et al dopes the external oxide note [0125]-[0140] of silica, titania and alumina. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicants' invention with a reasonable expectation of success to use combination of size and charging characteristics of known external additives to control the physical properties such as better transfer efficiency and stabilized charging property of a toner and have an image with improved density and reduced fog on non-imaged portions.
